

Nearly 1 million hectares lost.

An area of coastal ecosystems larger than New York City is destroyed every year, removing an important buffer from extreme weather for coastal communities and releasing carbon dioxide into the atmosphere.

Climate Change Conference (CCC) is an annual meeting that coordinates international efforts to address climate change and reviews the UNFCCC's progress and implementation. For more information, please visit our website.

Save nature. It's cheaper.

Conserving ecosystems is often more cost-effective than human-made interventions. In the Maldives, building a sea wall for coastal protection cost about CAD 2.2 billion. Even after 10 years of maintenance costs, it is still four times cheaper to preserve the natural reef.
